London, August 14.

A Mail which arrived Yesterday from France, has brought the following Advices.

From the Paris Gazette, dated Aug. 19.

Madrid, July 31.

THE Marquis Stefano Mari, a Genouefe, has concluded a Treaty, by which he obliges himself to fit out and arm Six Men of War for his Catholick Majesty's Service. We have an Account by several Couriers arrived from Catalonia, that the Rebels of Barcelona persisted in their Resolution to defend themselves: That they sent out Nebot with above 1000 Volunteers and Miquelets, to attempt to surprize Tarragona; but he not being able to succeed in it, possessed himself of some Passages at the Distance of three Leagues from that Town. The Marquis de Lede who commands there being informed of it, detached Don Diego Gonzalez, a Brigadier of the Army, to dislodge them, with the Regiment of Dragoons of Ossuna which he commands, and three Companies of Grenadiers, which he executed with all the Conduct and Diligence possible: So that they were intirely defeated, 200 being killed and 250 taken Prisoners, without the Loss of more than four Soldiers. The Brother and two Nephews of Nebot were among the Prisoners, and he himself very narrowly escaped with ten Men through an impracticable Country. In the mean while the Marquis de Ceva-Grimaldi had siezed the Town of Martorel on the Llobregat, whence he advanced to St. André de Barca on the same River, the People making no Opposition to his March; on the contrary they came in to him on all Sides to assure him of their Obedience. The Duke de Popoli who followed him with the Army, arrived the 20th at Igualada, where he stopped three Days to wait for his Convoys, and in the mean time several Vigueries came and submitted themselves to the King's Clemency. The 23d he marched again and passed the River at San Felion de Llobregat; whence he was to advance into the Plain of Barcelona, and post his Right at Sarria, and his Left at St. André on the River Besos, on the Road to Barcelona from Ostalric and Girone. We have Advice likewise, that a very great Number of Families of Barcelona were retired to Mataro and to Vich, to avoid the Violence of the Populace of that Capital: That the Inhabitants of the Plain of Vich were preparing to defend the Entrance of it against the Miquelets, and were working on Intrenchments in the Passages. The two German Regiments which remained at Mataro for want of Shipping, were marched towards Blanes, whither those which marched out of Tarragona and are still in the Neighbourhood, are to be transported, there to be embarked all together on the Transports which are expected from Italy.

From the Camp before Landau, Aug. 8. The 28th of last Month the Marshal de Villars went with a Body of Horse and Dragoons to view the Banks of the Rhine, as far as below Mentz, and also to view the new Works with which the Enemy have augmented the Fortifications of Mentz. The Marshal arrived there the 29th, and found, that the Enemy had formed a Camp between the Mein and the Rhine: That the Troops of Hanover were still 5 or 6 Leagues off Mentz, and that those of Hesse and others were at greater Distance. This Excursion gave a great Alarm: Two Troops of Hussars were met and fallen upon, and some were killed or taken, divers Horses were likewise taken, and the Marshal returned to his Camp the 30th. The Night between the 2d and 3d Instant, the Besieged sprung two Mines in the Necks of two of the three Lunettes which were taken the Night between the 31st and the 1st. Which done, they made Sallies to attempt to retake these Lunettes. They penetrated into one of them, but were cut off, 35 were made Prisoners and the rest were repulsed with great Loss, and with such Vigour that a Sergeant and 15 Grenadiers entered the Covered-Way, Part of which the Enemy abandoned, believing we were going to attack them. On this Occasion, the Fire of the Besieged was so great, that two Captains of Grenadiers of the Regiment of Orleans, eight other Officers, and four Ingeniers, were wounded; 40 Soldiers were killed, and 118 wounded. The Night between the 4th and 5th, a Parallel of 3 or 400 Toises was made on the Glacis of the Covered-Way in the Front of the Attacks, and Batteries of Cannon and Mortars were raised there. At the same time Mines were begun under the Saillant Angles of the Covered-Way, from the Gate of France to the Outlet of the River. The Miners discovered one of the grand Galleries of the Besieged, and entering pretty far into it, they found a Mine closed, and they set fire to five or six Quintals of Powder, to render that Gallery useless. The Besieged sprung four or five Fournaux which did more Damage to themselves than to the Besiegers. The same Night, it was resolved to attack the Pasty, a Work so called, which covered the Digue that keeps up the River and filled with Water the Ditch of the Counterguard which is before the Redoubt. The Pasty was carried, though there were in it 100 Men with a Captain, who was taken, and the rest were killed taken or drowned. While our Men were working to lodge themselves there, the Besieged sallied to retake that Work, but the Grenadiers repulsed them. A Bomb fell upon a Digue of Earth which served for a Communication with the Pasty, and opened such a Gap in it, that a great Deal of Water ran into the Ditch and into the Fore-Ditch on this Side of which was a Covered-Way that was cut off by the taking of the Pasty. The Communication was was speedily repaired, and a new Communication was made with Flotes upon Rafter. In the Attack of this Work we lost some Soldiers, with the Captain of Grenadiers of the Swiss Regiment of Villars, and Major Many was dangerously wounded. There were besides 150 Soldiers killed or wounded. Men are labouring to cut the Digue of Timber-Work and the Sluce which are at the Neck of the Passy, so that the Waters begin to run off. The Left Faces of the Redoubt towards the Bessiers and of the Counterguard which covers it, are already much damaged by the Batteries. The Besieged have since the Siege began sprung above forty Mines. The 5th the Duke of Bourbon took a Review of the Cavalry.

From the Paris Letter, dated Aug. 18.

Paris, Aug. 18. The Letters from the Camp before Landau of the 8th Instant, tell us the Attack of the Passy was made suddenly and without Precaution, so that our Grenadiers remained there almost a whole Day without making any Lodgement and without any Communication with our Attacks, for Want of Workmen, which is the Reason we lost a good many Men and had some Officers wounded. The same Night our Men lodged themselves on a Saillant Angle of the Covered-Way, which our Miners had blown up by a Fournau, and 'twas this gave Occasion to the Report first spread that we had attacked and taken the Covered-Way: Mean while, as we were but 2 Toises from the Pallisades, 'twas reckoned we should attack it the 9th. Other Letters of the 10th confirm, that our Men had lodged themselves on a Saillant Angle of the Covered-Way.

From the Paris Gazette, dated Aug. 19.
